Founded in 2006 in the USA, RetroActif creates fun and eye-catching eco-handbags from discarded art banners.

Street pole banners, giant billboards and wallsapes are used in great quantities to promote products, events and organisations.

To withstand the harsh effects of the climate, they're usually made from non-biodegradable materials. Millions are thrown away each year, never to be used again.

RetroActif recycles these materials by creating exclusive eco-handbags.

As unique objects produced in limited editions from a finite number of banners, these bags embody great art and contemporary advertising trends.

RetroActif eco-handbags are available from WOMANLY for $120.
